Jazz Instruments | Text by Peter Bölke

Less than a dozen of instruments were surprisingly sufficient to encourage jazz musicians' ambition to make music. Many of these instruments actually found their meaning during the jazz era. Jazz stars were constantly working to improve their sound/way of playing. The history of jazz instruments is the story of the artists who played them. Each of the eight chapters tells the story of an instrument and is accompanied by a CD, featuring the most impressive jazz compositions related to that specific instrument. High fidelity recordings of Miles Davis, Coleman Hawkins, Duke Ellington, Dave Brubeck, Oscar Peterson, Django Reinhardt, Eddie Lang, Dexter Gordon and many more are included in this earBOOK.

Elvis The Early Years | Photographs by Alfred Wertheimer

His first recording contract, RCA Studio sessions, the breakthrough as the defining figure of rock'n'roll, chart successes, an acting career – 1954 to 1959 were undoubtedly the most significant years for the King of rock'n'roll. Elvis was frequently accompanied during this period by the renowned photographer Alfred Wertheimer, who was afforded unrestricted access to the King. Wertheimer's reputation was cemented by the intimate portrait of the star that he was thus able to create. The images are quite exceptional – unaffected, spontaneous and, with the passage of time, as famous as the artist and photographer themselves. "Elvis – The Early Years" – in collaboration with the Elvis Presley Estate (Graceland) – presents an exclusive selection of Wertheimer's Elvis Presley photographs. Music CDs: the 3 CDs that come with the book feature over 50 songs selected from the early years of the King.

Palermo La città e la musica | Photographs by Max Dax

Palermo. Full of history and tradition. A town full of markets, coffeehouses and joie de vivre. No other town was avoided as much as this one. It was once the mafia's stronghold, a place of decline and chaos. Since then, it has survived and got rid off its scars. The town has also been restored; reborn, we might say. Palermo is the very image of Sicilian beauty: full of life and contradictions, and thus is also quite close to the spirit of the town. Music CDs: a well-balanced mix of traditional Sicilian folk music, different forms of tarantella tunes, from "belle canzoni" to music from Luchino Visconti's "The Leopard" as well as the opera "Cavalleria Rusticana" in a recording with Maria Callas.

Smooth Trippin' | Photographs by Martin Mlecko

Cool Sounds in Movement

Smooth Trippin' is a book about travel – an unusual one. It doesn't show typical travel motifs, doesn't place emphasis on the representational, but rather on the elusive and the transitory. The colorful motion-blurred pictures are like memories that slowly melt and become indistinct. Photographer and film artist Martin Mlecko's main theme is his subjective glance, which he captures with his lens. Music CDs: the pictures are accompanied by well known Chill-Out act, Chevy Martin, whose lounge music is spiced with tasteful retro-elements.

Malacarne Married to the Mob | Photographs by Alberto Giuliani

"Malacarne" is a bleak, unsparing portrait of the Mafia and its organizations. At the same time, it also represents a cultural journey through the regions of Italy where the influence of the Mafia has been most keenly felt. Photographer Alberto Giuliani's prizewinning images illustrate the extent to which the Mafia permeates the lives and culture of the populace. His dispassionate, unembellished frame of reference creates a complex profile of a deeply distressed society. Giuliani's photographs are augmented by essays and articles about the Mafia, outlining the situation in Italy from a variety of perspectives. Contributors include leading authors and experts on the Mafia such as Roberto Saviano, Rita Borsellino (MEP and sister to Paolo Borsellino, the murdered magistrate) and Pino Corrias (RAI, Vanity Fair, La Repubblica). Music CDs: the two CDs feature songs of the Mafia, the so-called "canti di malavita", offering an insight into the code and conduct of organized crime, as well as revealing the proud sense of belonging felt by many an affiliate of the Mafia. This music is indicative of how the Mafia influences cultural life, expressed in songs, dances and rituals unique to its history.

Alberto Giuliani

Photographer

MALACARNE

Alberto Giuliani was born in Italy in 1975. His pictures speak of momentous events of our time. But his way of representing reality has often transcended the boundaries of printed paper, thus assuming the qualities of a work of music, theatre or narrative. Since early 2007, he has focussed his full attention on the Italian Mafia for a project by the name of Married to the Mob. "Malacarne" is based on the work in progress, as Giuliani impresses upon us the acute topicality of this complex and dangerous phenomenon through the works he has created to date. This work has already won a number of international awards, including the LEICA Award for Photojournalism in 2010.

Thomas Pfahl

Author

MINI

Thomas Pfahl, born in 1973, is a man who lives for cars with all his heart and soul. He grew up near that legendary German race course, the Nürburgring; and from his earliest childhood displayed genuine enthusiasm for anything on four wheels. Quite appropriately, after his school-leaving exams, he completed an apprenticeship as a car mechanic. In 1997, Thomas Pfahl decided to add the camera to his existing tools such as the spanner: following a traineeship in the editing team of a daily paper, he did another period of training with the Vestische Mediengruppe Welke. Henceforth, he contributed to several journals. Thomas Pfahl has been associated with "Mini Scene International" as editor-in-chief since its very first edition.

Giuseppe Pino

Photographer

BLACK & BLUES
LOVE MY JAZZ · SAX!

Giuseppe Pino is Milanese – with roots in Sicily, Switzerland and France. In spite of his reputation in photography's world, his exhibitions and books are so few and far between: the wider audience knows him only as a refined portraitist and an extraordinary observer of the jazz universe. But in four decades he has kept his style intact while working in different genres: nudes, fashion, advertising, corporate image, including A.D. A recurring feature in his images, portraits or otherwise: irony, together with naturalness (not much), lots of surrealism and, today, even a bit of sarcasm.

Robert Polidori

Photographer

MOODS OF LA HABANA

Robert Polidori, born in Montreal in 1951, lives in New York. Polidori is an aesthete of built space; his photographs totally redefine the photography of architecture. Exceptional city portraits capture places almost lost from view and lend them a captivating, melancholy magic that makes Polidori's pictures utterly original. His works has been exhibited in Paris, Brasilia, New York, Los Angeles and Minneapolis. He is a regular contributor to The New Yorker – and has been featured in Geo and Architectural Digest Germany. Mr. Polidori has received numerous honours, including a World Press Award and two Alfred Eisenstaedt Awards – one of them for the work in Havana.

Since 2008, Frédéric Soltan has returned to a project started in Paris at the beginning of the 1980s centered on the project of the Halles, a favorite spot for artists and graffiti artists: he travels the planet with his partner, Dominique, seeking mural paintings; the echoes of the pulse of our world.

Chris Rea

Musician

THE RETURN
OF THE FABULOUS
HOFNER BLUENOTES

Virtuoso guitar work, an unmistakably smoky-mellow voice and exceptional songs have lifted Chris Rea to international success. Sparing in his words and gestures, the artist shuns mainstream and fashionable trends to pursue his personal style, which has always been blues-influenced. Back in '78, Chris Rea's first solo single "Fool (If You Think It's Over)" entered the UK and US charts. Since then, Chris Rea has sold over 22 million albums worldwide. His discography now embraces over 20 albums and he has never stopped appearing with his band in international concert halls. He considered it a great honour to be invited to the 2002 Montreux Jazz Festival.

His work has been published in countless magazines, books and is represented by Elvis Presley Enterprises.

Jim Zimmermann

Photographer

TANGO

Jim Zimmermann was born in Offenbach am Main, Germany, in 1948 and has lived in Stuttgart since 1969. He gave up his profession as an architect in favour of his passion for photography. Every image in which he captures live, authentic life and feeling makes amends for his existential insecurity. Since 1987 he has been observing couples dancing the Argentinian tango – including performers at the best international level. He believes that to photograph the tango well, it is necessary to love it and dance it oneself. He takes the same approach to the subjects of his portraits, the models he uses for his body portraits, musicians and actors. A good photograph is like a poem which one wants to read again.
